

Long Distance Love

BY: PETRINA LIN

Across two cities, my lover stays
Although distant, cause no dismay.
With each rejoining time we get
If not used wisely, will instill regret.
Our invisible bodies lay side by side,
He holds my hand, yet I pull aside.
A dwindling flame in our hearts
persist,
Although I suffer, I cannot resist.